Preliminary Discourse.

AN undertaker or a grave digger is not considered a valuable acquisition, or a cheerful element at a social party. I cannot recollect an instance where one of either profession was to be met at any merry-making, nor can I recall any individual among my acquaintance who confessed any relationship to a member of either one of these dismal guilds. The daughter of the grave digger, or the consort of the undertaker are nonentities. These dismal human necessities appear to be barred from society and its pleasures, and are the last persons which one wishes to have about, and then “at the last scene of all which ends this strange, eventful history.”

I am ready to believe that the genealogist will soon reach the social status of the ghastly undertaker and the earthy grave digger. It would seem that the study of genealogy should meet with more encouragement in this age of inquiry and investigation, but the contrary of this proposition appears to be in the ascendant.

No argument can convince many correspondents of the advantages of genealogy. The benefits to be derived from a pursuit of genealogic inquiry appear not to be appreciated, and the results of years of labor (if successful and placed in book form) are looked upon as a vade mecum for the especial gratification of those inquisitive individuals who desire to know “how old such a person is?” or “how successful such a couple have been in the propagation of the family name?”

The genealogist quite often is considered in the light of a ghoul or a resurrectionist—a social hyena desecrating the graves of a past generation, or a sort of Tybalt, “with some great kinsman’s bone, as with a club” menacing the living world for information concerning the ancestral line.

A circular of inquiry addressed to certain individuals concerning their ancestry, inspires a certain degree of horror and the recipient soliloquizes—"What do I know about my ancestors? and what if it should be true that my great-grandfather was, in consequence of some 'trespass on the law,' made an example of suspended animation? Perish the thought! Why will some people persist in annoying the living by prying into the dead past?"—and after this philosophical reflection the circular is committed to the flames, and the genealogist "tears his hair." In this connection, it is "queer" that probably the same individual whose philosophy is noted above, or who knows little and cares less for his own ancestry, be it honestly humble or gloriously noble, will ransack the entire publications of the "Turf" or "Spirit," the herd books of the "Short-horn Association," or "Jersey Club," or the archives of the Swine-breeders' Convention, to discover the grandsire of a sway-backed gelding, the antecedents of a Durham bull or an Alderney heifer, the ancestry of a short-faced Lancaster boar or a Jersey red sow. It is a curious world—in more cases than one, "religion is one thing, and business is another."

Females generally manifest more interest in the matter of genealogy than the "sterner sex;" but the "girls" have their little peculiarities also. The lady of "a certain age," after a suppressed squeak, drops the circular of inquiry into the fire for obvious reasons, seemingly forgetting that when the mortal coil is shuffled, and the monumental marble is dealt, that the graver is quite liable (if the estate is sufficient) to advertise to an unsympathetic world the information so carefully withheld, if perhaps, the "Bureau of Statistics" has not sold the particulars of her advent into the world for the "usual fee."

Various other sentiments prevail among the "world's people" in reference to the objects of genealogic inquiry. All sorts of motives are imputed for inquiries made—desire to discover property improperly disposed of—money in the Bank of England—and other financially founded suspicions.

Mr. Layard, the traveler and historian, once applied to an Eastern caliph for information concerning certain antiquities, and in reply the follower of the Prophet said, "The answer which you seek of me, O, illustrious friend and Joy of my Liver, is both difficult and useless to be given."

The ordinary courtesy of business is rarely applied to the subject of genealogy; answers to letters on the topic are exceptional—and if statistics could be obtained I believe that genealogists contribute more extensively to the "mail service," and receive less corresponding return than any other class of patrons who moisten postage stamps.

As to the kind of information received in response to inquiry, some of it savors of the quality of the charity dispensed by the parish beadle who in such cases recommended the following method: "First find out what the pauper wants, give him something else, and he will never bother you again."

The affection of some families for bibles, muniments and other documents containing items of family history is surprisingly developed when the genealogist makes inquiry therefor. A bible centuries old, and whose only use for generations has been to elevate the junior member of the family to a proper altitude at the dinner-table, and which sacred volume contains the "family record," suddenly becomes an object of holy adoration when the genealogist desires to investigate the subject. No inducement can obtain its contents which are religiously sealed against the gaze of the family historian, who humbly bows his head, gropes in the darkness, and mentally curses the memory of James the First, whose neglect to expunge the writings of the Apostle who advised against "endless genealogies," has undoubtedly caused all the trouble which the compiler of domestic history has experienced.

Perhaps the revision of the sacred writings, now in progress, will modify the text, and give a new impetus to genealogical success, leaving no Apostolic excuse for non-attention to correspondence on the subject.

As an apology for any imperfections which are certain to be discovered in this, or any similar work, I desire to say—I am not a professional genealogist, and this production will be a sufficient evidence of the fact. My experience has taught me sympathy for any who take up the study professionally. My sole ambition has been to know more of my ancestry, and to furnish the information that I have accumulated for the benefit of others to whom the matter certainly should possess some interest. Persons who pursue this channel of investigation are generally persons of leisure—which I am not—and are possessed of a generous income to enable them to do it thoroughly—my purse is limited—but the labor has been a pleasure to me, answering as a sort of “knitting work” to fill in time which otherwise might have been wasted.

The work might have been more ample and complete but for reasons with which many of my correspondents should be familiar, and in conclusion I will merely quote “In completing this work, let me say to the descendants: I claim for you no greatness save a virtuous and honest parentage. May future generations keep up the standard in these respects, whatever they may do in others.”*

Concerning Normandy and the Normans.*

IN England, among many families it has been esteemed an evidence of gentle blood, and consequent honor, to trace their origin to some one of the gentry who “came over with the Conqueror.” William, Duke of Normandy, surnamed the Conqueror, laid claim to the throne of England, at the death of Edward the Confessor, in opposition to the alleged title of Harold. In support of his claim, William invaded England with a large army on the 28th of September, 1066, and on the 14th of October following, the great battle of Hastings was fought, in which Harold was slain, and England passed under the domination of the Norman dynasty.

The companions of the Conqueror, who have always borne the reputation of having been of the “first families” of Normandy, do not appear in such an estimable light when their antecedents are submitted to the crucible of historical investigation—they being but a generation of powerful land pirates with whom “might made right” and which principle governed all their movements. The honor therefore, of being descended from this body of troops is somewhat questionable; and to urge the importance of a descent from this gentry is not considered the “correct thing” as much as it was.

The tendency of the world, and its peoples, is to improve, and this feature is markedly apparent in the case of the Normans, who in early times enjoyed a questionable moral reputation as is evidenced in several literary works upon the manners and customs of that province. In support of this proposition I quote from “Blason Populaire de la Normandie,” comprising the proverbs, nicknames, and sayings relative to this ancient province, and to its inhabitants, “by M. A. Canel, Member of the Norman Society of Antiquaries.”

* This chapter may not be deemed absolutely necessary to this volume, but as I am convinced that the family is of Norman French extraction, I have thought proper to make these extracts that the “march of improvement” might be noted.

“In our old language, blasoner (heraldic, to blazon), signifies either to say good or bad, to praise or to revile: but popular blazonry inspires more of satire than eulogy. * * * Popular blazonry embraces all the vernacular expressions adopted by custom to qualify an individual, a portion of a people, an entire people, or a collection of peoples. * * * It is a branch of the numerous family of proverbs. * * * “Proverbs are called the ‘wisdom of nations.’” * * * “During the government of the dukes, the French were animated, with respect to the Normans, with a cordial hatred. * * * In the xviiith century, Etienne Pasquier was obliged to recognize the fact, that the French, piqued by the memory of their ancient quarrels with the Normans, naturally wished them evil: and with a common purpose even detested those who succeeded them.”

“With such a disposition, slander (blason) ought to have full scope, and as a resume of all slanderous attacks, a Doctor of Paris published a Norman Catechism, in which was set forth with all the strength of prepossessing explanation, that the merciful works of these same Normans were treason, flattery, gluttony, larceny, falsehood, envy, and imposture.”

An extract from the Catechism will show its general character:

Q. Do you know anything of the history of the Normans?

A. Yes: I know that anciently our province bore on its arms three faults (faulx) which signified that among us were found three kinds of persons; viz., false witnesses, salt smugglers (faux sauniers) and counterfeiters (faux monnayeurs).

Q. Is there any other remarkable thing in connection with the history of your province?

A. Our province is so ancient that it has had the honor of being the birth place of the thirteenth apostle of Jesus Christ.

Q. Where was he from?

A. From Haie-Pesnel.

Q. What was his name?

A. Judas Iscariot. On Good Friday the following epistle is sung in his honor: There was a man of Haie-Pesnel, a captain of Highwaymen. He was in the Garden of Olives, where he found our Lord J. C. to whom he said, “Good day, my gentle master, etc.”

Here is another extract:

Q. Who are those who should be called Normans?

A. They are those who enrich themselves at all hazards and with both hands.

Q. What is the sign of a Norman?

A. To have the hand on top of the head, ready to take a false oath.

Q. What are the necessary virtues for a Norman, and without which he would degrade his profession ?

A. There are five principal virtues.

Q. What are they ?

A. It is to be: first, a traitor, second a glutton, third a free-booter, fourth a flatterer, fifth a liar.

Q. How many commandments are there in this nation ?

A. Seven.

Q. Repeat them.

A. To God in vain thou mayest plead

To affirm thy false oath.

Thy parents' death thou shalt desire

To early have their goods.

The money of others do not spare

And their goods not at all.

False witness thou shalt always bear,

And dexterously it maintain.

The work of thy hands do not omit,

To constant reap thy gain.

Great favorite always make thyself,

For long time to maintain.

Thy neighbor's goods do not restore,

But knowingly restrain.

Among the soubriquets borne by the Normans in ancient times was the title of "Scourge of God:" and in the early litanies, the faithful, after having prayed to God to avert all other dangers, added: A furore Normannorum libera nos Domine!

The proverbs relative to Normandy and the Normans are almost without number. The following will suffice to show their character :

From Normandy bad winds and bad people.

Normans are inquisitive : where are you from ? what do you want ? where are you going ?

A Norman never says yes, or no.

A Norman has his say and his unsay.*

If you are wise, do not trust a red Frenchman, a black Englishman, or a Norman of any shape.

*In a prayer, a peasant of another province was heard to say, " Thou hast promised, O Lord, to assist us in time of trouble, and Thou wilt not refuse, for Thou art not a Norman."

A Norman dies when his right arm is paralyzed.

Normans are a cross between a fox and a cat.

Judas was a Norman as everybody knows.

Between Caen and Rouen was this sorry rascal born.

He sold his good Lord Jesus for thirty crowns cash.

To the d—— with all the Normans.

We ask nothing of you my Lord, only place us along side of those that have something.

Ninety-nine pigeons and one Norman make one hundred robbers.

If a Norman is not a sea pirate, he practices the profession on the land.

The Norman milks the East and West.

Paris is "happy Arabia" for Normans.

He is a Norman, he draws everything toward him.

Normans are born with crooked fingers.

When a Norman comes out of a house and brings nothing with him, he is believed to have forgotten something.

In Normandy if a newly born babe is thrown against a mirror it will find some way to catch on.

Norman priests collect the burial fee at time of baptism, because their flocks are in the habit of getting hung.

Normans are born with a grain of hemp seed in one hand, and an acorn in the other.*

---

These proverbs and sayings in all probability date from a remote period, and from their general tendency it would lead us to believe that they were not altogether founded on fancy, conveying also the idea that the early Norman was not a "pleasant person to do business with."

*Hemp seed becomes hemp, and hemp becomes rope: The acorn grows to an oak, and the oak may become a gallows. Hemp seed is also called "Norman salad." "Curse the salad!" said a Norman who heard it so called, "it has strangled my father and my grandfather, without mentioning uncles and cousins." A commentator on this proverb says that the rope counted greatly in the chances for the future of our ancestors, for they hung many in Normandy. It is frightful to calculate how many have been hung in the old market place at Rouen.

A poor Norman who was being led away to the gallows, and who was a practical philosopher and well knew his destiny, said to his wife for her consolation, "There are but two kinds of persons in the world, those who are hung and those who are not; it is absolutely necessary to be either one or the other."

THE NAME VARIAN.

THE origin of the name is undoubtedly French, it being quite common in various parts of France, notably in the ancient province of Normandy, where the family is still extant, its advent there dating from an exceeding remote period, and at present is reputed as "one of the good old families" in the vicinage of Rouen.

The appellation has existed under various forms of orthography, and in reference to its origin and signification I translate the following from "Origine et Signification des Noms Propres et des Armoires, par le Baron de Coston, Paris, 1867":

P. 420, note: "The original name of the Tencin family was GUÉRIN in the 16th century, GARIN in the 15th, GARINUS and GUARINUS in the deeds of the 12th century. This family, originally of Rome, was represented in 1589 by Antoine GUÉRIN, a royal judge, recently ennobled. GARIN, WARIN* and GUÉRIN (de gar win or ger win) signified "lover of war" (warlike) in the Teutonic dialect. The Guerins bought in the 17th century the lands of Tencin, from which they took their name, establishing themselves there in the 18th century."

The orthography of the name as now existing in France, as well as in the branches in Canada, is Varin, from which its corruption to the English form Varian, which is the orthography now in vogue in the families of the name, established in Ireland, Wales, England and the United States.

The assumption that "VARIAN" is a corruption of "VARIN" is undoubtedly true: the pronunciation of the latter name according to the French method, with accent on the last syllable, being strictly in consonance with the pronunciation of the anglicized name Varian: the interpolation of the extra syllable or letter "i" being a not uncommon form of corruption of proper names.

* There being no W in the French alphabet, and said letter being, in the modern tongue when required for a foreign word, known as "double-vé," the transition from Warin to Varin would be natural and probable.

Many family names of French or other foreign origin have nearly if not quite lost their identity through this custom of conforming them, first, by pronunciation, and then by orthography, to the language of other peoples among whom the original proprietors have become established. Thus Corneille has become Cornell—Sicard, Secor—Angevin, Angevine—Bailli, Bailey—Bertein, Bertine or Bartine—Feriers, Ferris—L'Espnard, Lispnard—Guyon, Guion—Bertaut, Bartow, etc.

An odd instance of this transmutation of names has come to my notice. A German family Eismann settled in a western town. The children were sent to the village school, and the pedagogue, not familiar with the German method, registered their names "Icsman." When the urchins were instructed in the mystery of writing and spelling they were taught the schoolmaster's orthography of their patronymic. The parents, not being familiar with the English characters, did not correct the blunder, and the "Icsman" family in America became established in name as well as in fact.

The Family in France.

THE scarcity of books on French Genealogy and Heraldry in our libraries has prevented me from making as full inquiry as I desired in reference to the family in that country.

The following notices of the name are taken from "NOBILIAIRE DE NORMANDIE, published by a Society of Genealogists, with the consent of the principal noble families of the province, under the direction of E. DeMagny, Paris, 1862-1864.

The Family in Canada.

THE branches of the VARIN family established in Canada all claim a Norman ancestry, and are descended from individuals of the name formerly resident at or near the City of Rouen.

For much of the following information I am indebted to the excellent volume entitled "Dictionnaire Genealogique des Familles Canadiennes from the foundation of the colony until the present day," by M. L'abbé Cyprien Tanguay, Quebec, 1871."

Through the kindness of Mr. J. E. Varin, an attaché of the Court of Queen's Bench at Montreal, I am favored with the following notes of the "Varin" family, partially procured from the archives of the Montreal Historical Society.

* See contribution from Mr. J. E. Varin.

The family was originally from the neighborhood of the City of Rouen, in the province of Normandy in France.

In the year 1582 the Chevalier VARIN à St. Pierre du Grand Cavilly de Rouen bore arms "Chevron de sable, sur fond d'azur, lance en tete, et mollettes en sautoir."

In 1598 a person of the name of VARIN was hung at the Isle aux Sables for mutiny on board one of the vessels forming part of the expedition of the Marquis de la Roche to Canada in that year. It is not claimed that any of the present VARIN family in Canada are descended from this individual.

VARIN ——— appointed commissary in the army in Canada under the intendant Bigot in 1748, filled the position of intendant during the absence of Bigot in France. He was appointed commissary of the navy in 1755; was an industrious financier, sought to make money, and succeeded. He founded a mercantile house which was called "La Triponne" (sharper's or swindler's house) on account of the high-toned transactions of the proprietor. He finally started for France in 1754, loaded with wealth, which he, with Bigot, had accumulated, having ruined the country, and left it to its own resources to be conquered by England, whose armies encountered but troops without arms or ammunition and destitute of food or clothing.

This latter VARIN figures as a character in an historical novelette entitled "Le Grand Vaincu," published the last year (1880) in "Feuilleton Illustré," at Montreal. In this tale the financial peculiarities of this VARIN are elaborately portrayed.*

* The following description of M. VARIN, taken from the novel mentioned, must be read with due regard to the source from whence it came.

"M. VARIN was a man of small stature, and whose ornamented coat and powdered peruke illy concealed his low and vulgar origin. Bushy and black eyebrows surmounted small active eyes which flashed with intelligence, a large chin, a mouth with thick lips, two great red hands extending heavily beyond the lace of his coat-sleeves, which were so tight that the ends of his fingers were blue, a manner at once cunning and cringing, but which changed to that of arrogance when the intendant was in the presence of an inferior. Such, in a few words, was this personage, the living incarnation of the most sordid vices, the veritable image of a parvenu presumptuously covetous and insolent, without heart, soul or tenderuess, and whose singular and active intelligence passionately sought but a single end—lucre." [Evidently an old time Norman.—ED.]

In common with many others, the contributor of the foregoing, Mr. J. E. Varin, knows but little of his ancestry, save that his great-grandfather, grandfather, as well as his father, bore the surname "La Pistolet." His father, deceased at Cohoes, N. Y., having served three years in the Union army during the Rebellion 1861-1865. He enlisted as a private, was wounded severely in the battles before Richmond, Va., and, having been a physician of repute in Canada, succeeded upon his discharge from the hospital in obtaining a commission as surgeon, ranking as major in the Army of the Potomac.

Mr. Varin expresses the opinion that his family is descended from the commissary who contributed to sell Canada to England.

Besides the acknowledgements already made, I am under obligations for information to Mr. O. Bouchard, Montreal, Mr. A. Varin, Quebec, Mr. Ernest Varin, Montreal, and Mr. G. Arthur Varin, Quebec.

The Family in Ireland.

THE tradition concerning the family in Ireland is, that it was established there after the Cromwellian invasion of that island, and the various persons with whom I have corresponded on the subject in England, Ireland and Wales, each attribute the origin of their ancestors to Normandy in France, from whence they were driven by religious persecution.

The tradition says that the first of the name in Ireland were brothers, ISAAC and JOHN VARIAN, who were officers in a regiment of Cromwell's cavalry, and in the partition of the confiscated lands among the followers of the Protector, ISAAC received a grant of "fifty town lands" in the Co. Kerry, but he, disregarding the conditions of the gift by "marrying a native," forfeited the property in consequence.

JOHN VARIAN is supposed to have settled near Middleton, and no trace of his descendants (if he had any) can be obtained.

ISAAC VARIAN, a descendant of the ISAAC mentioned above, was a musician and dancing master who resided at Cork, about the year 1723. He married late in life and had children,

1. ISAAC, of whom hereafter.
2. THOMAS, of whom hereafter.
3. AMOS, b. Cork, Aug. 1771. d. 1853 of whom hereafter.
4. NANCY, of whom hereafter.

1. ISAAC, followed the profession of his father, was a great favorite in Cork, a good musician, and sustained a circle of amateur theatrical and musical friends by his general kindly manners. He was unmarried.

2. THOMAS, married a very young wife, a Miss Skinner, aged 16 years, and had a family of about seventeen children, who all died young, or in early prime. He founded a brush factory in Cork, bringing skilled labor from London, and was very successful.

3. AMOS, was a wool comber for some years, and subsequently became a grocer. He married, 1807, Dora Walpole, b. Cork, 1788, d. 1826, and had issue.

5. ELLEN, b. Cork 9 June 1808, d. Apr. 1816.
6. ANN, b. Cork 9 Dec. 1809, d. ——— 1843.
7. ISAAC STEPHEN, b. Cork, 26 Dec. 1811, d. 1869, m. 1849, Susan Osborne, was a brush manufacturer in London, then at Dublin. Has six sons and two daughters living. One son, WALTER A., resides at Washington D. C., U. S. A., with his uncle, J. W. Osborne.
8. THOMAS HINCKS, b. Cork, 11 Feb. 1813, d. 1824.
9. DORA, b. Cork, 7 Jan., 1814, d. 1849, m. 1843 Abel Dean, professor of music, Halifax, York. No issue living.
10. AGNES, b. Cork, 6 Mar., 1816, d. 1874.
11. MARY, b. Cork, 19 May, 1818, d. 1867, m. 1849, RALPH VARIAN, her cousin, a brush manufacturer at Cork, in business with his bro. WILLIAM.
12. REBECCA, b. Cork, 3 Apr., 1821, d. 1875, m. 1851, Alexander Henderson of the British Legation, at Lisbon, Portugal.
13. AMOS JOHN, b. Cork, 20 Oct., 1822, m. 7 May, 1860, Anna Richards Spencer. He is a brush manufacturer; firm I. S. VARIAN & Co., 92 Talbot St., Dublin. Children, AGNES, DORA and ANNIE.
14. THOMAS HINCKS, b. Cork, 6 Dec., 1824, d. 1825.
15. HETTY, b. Cork, 1 May, 1826, m. 1861, George Ligerson, M. D., and Professor of Botany, Catholic University, Dublin.

The gentlemen of this family of VARIAN have been for many years active in the temperance movement in Ireland, ISAAC S. (7) being particularly vigorous in the cause, and assisting in introducing the work to the notice of the great Temperance Apostle, Father Mathew.

In religious affairs they are "Humanitarians," or liberal Unitarians, not attaching much importance to doctrinal matters.

4. NANCY, m. about 1800, Thomas Ladd, of London, a brush-maker.

The family tradition in Ireland makes the City of Rouen, France, as the ancient home of the VARIANS, and derives the name from an old Norse appellation, denoting "strength." The crest is stated also to be a "drum on a battle field," which, together with the "arms and motto," is to be found in Norman Heraldry. The family were said to be very powerful in Normandy in feudal times, and many of the race were then interred in the Cathedral at Rouen, where the family is still extant, and is looked upon as one of the "good old families."

A variation of the tradition regarding the lands in Ireland received from Oliver, locates the possessions in the western part of Co. Cork (Bantry), and states that the patrimony was wasted in "riotous living," in accordance with the custom of the "fine old Irish gentleman" of the ancient days.

Another statement regarding the "crest," etc., mentions the "arms" as being a "drum, with mailed hand holding a dagger above it," with motto in Latin, rendered "without change."

One WILLIAM VARIAN, under Charles I., is said to have been a collector of imposts at Cork, married "a wild Irish girl," and forfeited his property and place.

Another source furnishes the following scanty information concerning a branch of the Irish family:

JOHN VARIAN (a great-grandson of the Cromwellian officer) was a barrister-at-law, and had two brothers who were clergymen of the Church of England, and probably were brought up in "holy orders" to partially atone for the sanguinary avocation of their ancestors. The aforesaid JOHN had four sons, viz.:

- a. JOHN.
- b. RICHARD.
- c. THOMAS.
- d. STEPHEN. Has son living at Cork, Ireland.

c. THOMAS had seventeen children, many of whom died in infancy, but those who lived to maturity were:

ELIZA, deceased.

DANIEL.

MARIA, widow, lives in Australia.

CATHERINE, single, lives in England.

JOHN.

HENRY H., in government service at present (1881) at London.

JANE, deceased.

GEORGINA, deceased.

THOMAS JAMES, res. Holyhead, Wales, Capt. of Dublin Steamer.

Eliza, m. George Rogers and em. to America, where he d., and she m. again.

---

One JUSTIN VARIAN, a bachelor, said to have emigrated from Ireland when very young, was resident, 1844, on Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La., and was reputed very wealthy. He died shortly after, leaving his property to the municipality.

---

For the information herein contained I express my obligations to Mr. Amos J. Varian, Dublin, Ireland; Mr. Walter Amos Varian, Washington, D. C.; Capt. Thomas J. Varian, Holyhead, Wales; Mr. Henry H. Varian, London, England.

The Family in the United States.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. ISAAC VARIAN, the first of the name in the United States appears as a butcher in the City of New York in the year 1720,* located in the "Old Slip Market." The place of his nativity (as is frequently the case in regard to original emigrants) is unknown, except through tradition, which varies among the different branches of his posterity; some claiming his antecedents as French, others attributing his origin to Holland, while others hold that he emigrated hither from the north of Ireland.

I am inclined to believe that the family originated in France, but am of the opinion that his ancestors emigrated to Holland about the time of the revocation of the Edict of Nantes,† and were established in Holland for some years prior to his advent in America. This would seem to be quite probable from the affiliations formed in New York by himself and his children. The idea of his Irish origin may possibly be supported by the existence of the name "Isaac" in several generations of the family in that country. Either of these theories are but suppositions, and unsupported by any evidence yet discovered, except what is contained within these pages.

ISAAC VARIAN was admitted as a "freeman" of the City of New York, 23 Jan., 1733. He followed the vocation of a butcher in that city for many years, and has always been regarded as one of the "fathers of the guild" in Manhattan. He was lessee of Stand No. 3 in the "Fly Market" in 1750, and had occupied the same since 10 Dec., 1735. In 1737-8 he was a member of the military company of Capt. Cornelus Van Horne. He owned a negro, "Worcester," who was implicated in the "Great Negro Plot" in 1741, and for which crime said African was transported. In May, 1740, he was proprietor of a stall in the "Meal" or "Wall Street Market." In 1784 he appears as a petitioner for the establishment by Richard Deane of a public slaughter house on the North River. He is also probably identical with ISAAC VARIAN, butcher, who resided or was in business at 105 Queen Street; 33 Bowery Lane, 1790; 35 Bowery Lane, 1791; 38 Bowery Lane, 1792-3; 61 Bowery Lane, 1795-7; 98 Bowery Lane, 1798.

He accumulated considerable property, and deceased at his residence on Bowery Lane, about the year 1800. He was married in the Old Dutch Church in New York, 12 Aug., 1732, to Elizabeth De Vouw,* who survived him and deceased at an advanced age in 1828.

SECOND GENERATION.

The children of ISAAC and Elizabeth (De Vouw) VARIAN were born in the City of New York, and are named:

2. JOSEPH, b. 24 Feb., 1732-3.
3. JAMES, b. 10 Jan., 1734; d. 11 Dec., 1800.
4. RICHARD, b. 25 Dec., 1736; d. 20 Dec., 1822.
5. MICHAEL, b. 9 Dec., 1738; d. 1825.
6. ISAAC, b. 8 Sept., 1740; d. 29 May, 1820.

THIRD GENERATION.

2. JOSEPH VARIAN, eldest son of ISAAC 1, b. in New York, 24 Feb., 1732-3, d. ————, was a butcher by profession, and was admitted as a "freeman" 5 Aug., 1755. In a newspaper of this year (1755) he is empowered by ISAAC VARIAN to settle some business affairs of the latter. In 1784 he was a butcher in "Bear Market," and signed a petition endorsing RICHARD VARIAN as superintendent of the public slaughterhouse. He appears to have had business reverses, as, in 1784, his property was sold to pay his creditors.

His first wife was Hannah ————, (family name and date of marriage unknown.) He m. 2. 31 Oct., 1764, (N. Y. Marriage Licenses, p. 436,) Rachel White, of Connecticut. All the information that I have been able to obtain concerning his posterity, is taken from the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, (Vols. IV., 143, 198; V., 36; VI., 50; VII., 129; VIII., 23, 79; X., 132,) which, in the published records of the First Presbyterian Church of New York, notes the following births and baptisms of his children:

By Hannah ————:

7. JOHN* b. at N. Y. 3 June, 1756; bap. 4 July, 1756.
8. HANNAH, b. at N. Y. 24 Sep., 1758; bap. 22 Oct., 1758; prob. d. young.
9. ISAAC, b. at N. Y. 3 Aug, 1760; bap, 30 Aug., 1760.

---

*JOHN 7. may be identical with JOHN VARIAN, file cutter, residing on Desbrosses St., N. Y., 1808. JEANET VARIAN, tailoress, resident on same street, near Hudson St., 1817-19, may have been the widow of this JOHN.

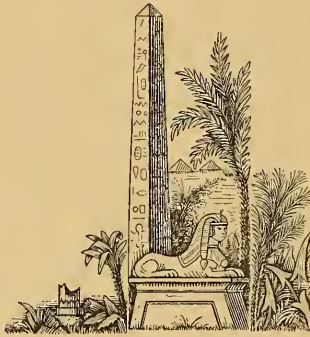

By his wife Rachel White:

10. HANNAH, b. at N. Y. 13 Apr., 1765; bap. 30 Jan., 1766.
11. DAVID DEVOIR,* b. at N. Y. 21 July, 1767; bap. 25 Dec., 1768.
12. RICHARD, b. at N. Y. 11 Mar., 1770; bap. 8 Apr., 1770.
13. TIMOTHY WHITE, b. at N. Y. 9 Mar., 1771; bap. 7 Apr., 1771.
14. DEBORAH, b. at N. Y. 28 June, 1774; bap. 26 Nov., 1774.

As the name of JOSEPH VARIAN 2, does not appear in the Directories of New York City after 1784, it may be that he removed from the city, and his family became extinct, but the latter contingency is hardly probable. He may also have had other children besides those named above. In the Appendix to this book are the names of VARIANS who could not be identified as of any particular family, and among these may be found some of the descendants of JOSEPH VARIAN 2.

*David Devoir, or De Voor, was of a prominent Dutch family of New York at this period.

THIRD GENERATION.

3. JAMES VARIAN, second son of ISAAC 1, b. N. Y. City, 10 Jan. 1734, d. Scarsdale, N. Y., 11 Dec. 1800, was a butcher in N. Y. until the capture of that city by the British during the war of the Revolution, at which time, in common with other patriots, he removed. He withdrew to a farm at Scarsdale on the "neutral ground" where he remained until his decease. His name does not appear in any N. Y. Directory after 1784. During the war he rendered service under the Colonial flag, and his possessions were despoiled by the human wolves infesting this part of Westchester Co. during the war and who were known as "Skinners" and "Cowboys." For twenty years prior to his decease he was a helpless paralytic, caused by exposure in the patriot cause. Both he and his family were driven from their farm by the British, and took refuge at Danbury, Conn., from whence they returned after the peace was proclaimed.

His will is dated 10 Dec. 1797, and proven and recorded at White Plains, N. Y., 26 June 1801. In it he is mentioned as "of Scarsdale," N. Y., and he names wife and all his children except ELIZABETH, who perhaps d. young.

He m. 25 Feb. 1759, (N. Y. Marriages, bond dated 16 Feb. 1759,) at New York, Deborah Dibble, of Connecticut, who d. 12 Apl., 1823.

Their children were:

15. ELIZABETH, b. ? N. Y., 5 Dec., 1760; bap. 18 Jan., 1761. (N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Rec., V. 37.) d. young.
16. JONATHAN, b. ? N. Y., 13 Nov., 1763, bap. 12 Feb., 1764. (N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Rec., V. 184.) d. 14 Feb., 1824. +
17. JAMES, b. ? Scarsdale, 22 Nov., 1765; d. 26 Dec., 1841. +

18. MICHAEL, b. Scarsdale, 31 Dec., 1767; d. 14 Aug., 1816. +
19. DEBORAH, b. Scarsdale, 8 Apr., 1770; d. 14 Aug., 1816. +
20. JOSEPH, b. Scarsdale, 27 May, 1773; d. 4 Sep., 1828. +
21. ICHABOD, b. Scarsdale, 26 Sep., 1775; d. 20 Sep., 1842. +

FOURTH GENERATION.

16. JONATHAN VARIAN, b. N. Y. City, 13 Nov., 1763, d. 14 Feb., 1824, aged 60-9-29, was a drover by occupation,* and also a Col. in the "War of 1812." He resided at Scarsdale, N. Y., and m. 11 Apr., 1811, Phebe, dau. of James and Susan Angevine. She b. 9 Aug., 1781, d. 19 Eldridge St., N. Y., 29 May, 1849, æt 68, of carcinoma, and was bur. at White Plains, N. Y. His will is dated 23 April, 1823; proved and recorded at White Plains, N. Y., 25 Feb., 1824, and in it are mentioned "brother JAMES," "wife Phœbe" and issue as below. The estate of his wife was administered by authority of letters granted to her son-in-law, JACOB H. VARIAN (husband of SUSAN A.) 4 Apr., 1850.—N. Y. Co. Records, Liber 50, p. 288.

Their children were:

22. SAMUEL, b. Scarsdale, N. Y., 4 Nov., 1813; d. N. Y. City, 3 Mar., 1843, unmarried.
  23. HENRY ASTOR, b. Scarsdale, N. Y., 21 Sep., 1816; d. 20 Sep., 1865, at New Rochelle, N. Y. +
  24. SUSAN ANGEVINE, b. Scarsdale, N. Y., 23 Sep., 1819; d. 29 May, 1870, N. Y. City. +
  25. ANDREW JACKSON, b. Scarsdale, N. Y., 31 May, 1822; d. Brooklyn, N. Y., 2 Mar., 1875. +
17. JAMES VARIAN, b. Scarsdale, N. Y., 22 Nov., 1765, d. 26 Dec., 1841, æt. 76-1-4, was possibly the same person who was in business in N. Y. at the following places: "livery stable," 39 Barclay, 1798; 104 Henry, 1806; rear 28 Oak, 1807-1810; 15 Jew's Alley, 1811; 171 Duane, 1814; 117 Anthony, 1815; victualler (retail butcher), 173 Duane, 1817.

A NOTABLE HEIRLOOM—THE HISTORY OF A QUEER OLD BIBLE WANTED.

To the Editors of the "Evening Post:"

I come to the Evening Post for some bibliological information. In the good keeping of Dr. Wm. Varian, of Kingsbridge, New York City, is now, and has long been, the ancient family Bible of his ancestors, the Varians of Westchester Co., N. Y., the fortunate lot of which was to be preserved uninjured through the war of the Revolution by being buried in the cellar of their dwelling house, the old residence in the town of Scarsdale, near the former Morris or Popham estate, still standing and occupied by a Varian.

Although much exposed (the family being patriotic) to the depredations of British soldiers, and especially to the "Cowboys," those notorious brigands of the period, so well described in Cooper's "Spy" and Bolton's "History of the County of Westchester," this farm-house escaped both the torch and total pillage, and the dark cellar at the dawn of peace, true to its trust, delivered up the venerable volume as good as ever, to be the household companion of subsequent generations, whose names are registered therein. This ancient English Bible is a large folio, with thick embossed lids, fitted originally to clasps, and bears the date 1715 on its title page, but not the name of the place where it was printed. Strangely, too, the illustrative pictures, of which there are several, are explained in the Dutch language. Our friend, the custodian of this precious heirloom, a nephew (?) of Isaac Varian, a former mayor of this city, informs me that his family is of Huguenot descent. Can any one tell something more about this singular edition of the Bible—where printed and by whom?

86. ALEXANDER, JR., b. Painesville, O., 8 April, 1842, d. 2 June, 1864, at Chattanooga, Tenn., of wounds received at Resacca, 14 May previous.

ALEXANDER VARIAN, JR., son of the Rev. ALEXANDER VARIAN, early enlisted in the Union army during the Rebellion, and deceased in consequence of wounds received at the battle of Resacca, 2 June, 1864. The following worthy tribute to his memory and patriotic services was indited by the Rev. Dr. Starkey, now Bishop of Northern New Jersey:

Died, June 2d, in the General Hospital at Chattanooga, Tenn., of a wound received in the battles near Dalton, Georgia, on the 14th of May, First Lieutenant Alexander Varian, of Company D, First Regiment, "Ohio Volunteer Infantry," in the twenty-second year of his age.

Thus sadly for his family and friends, but gloriously for himself and country, has closed a life whose beginning was full of generous promise. At the beginning of this war young Varian was earnestly desirous of taking his part in its responsibilities and perils, but, withheld by private considerations which could not be put aside, it was not until after the first battle of Bull Run, when the First Regiment returned on recruiting service, that Mr. Varian was able to carry out his fixed purpose of enlisting in its ranks. Recommended from the first by his character and his intelligence, he was soon made a corporal in his company, and in that capacity distinguished himself so greatly by his skill and courage in the second day's battle at Pittsburg Landing, and the scenes of hardship which preceded and followed that sanguinary engagement, that he was immediately after promoted to a second lieutenancy. In the battle of "Stone River" Lieutenant Varian was wounded in the ankle whilst generously engaged in rescuing a fallen comrade from under the enemy's fire, and it was during his confinement in the hospital at Nashville that he received his next promotion as a just reward of his valor. At the fierce assault on Missionary Ridge he was again struck down by a spent bullet, and still later, in close quarters at Rocky Ridge, had his clothes cut by a musket ball. The wound which finally closed his career, near Dalton, was in the breast. He lingered for something more than two weeks, and it was hoped, for a time, that he might recover, but a wise Providence had ordered otherwise, and he died on the 2d June the death of a brave soldier of the Republic and a sincere and humble Christian. Brave as a lion, but gentle as a child; earnest in purpose, but "easily entreated"; ingenuous and frank, but with a fund of wisdom beyond his years; thoughtful and considerate for others, but freely exposing his own life whenever duty called him, Lieutenant Varian is a loss to the service—an irreparable loss to his family and friends. His life and death honored the Savior, whose disciple he had early professed himself, and the country, on whose altar he was a willing sacrifice. To God we recommend his gentle spirit. Requiescat in pace.

 90. EDWARD, b. Meadville, Pa., 6 Mar., 1855.

WILLIAMS-VARIAN.—Mr. Ed. Varian, formerly of this city, and Miss Florence M. Williams, daughter of Mr. B. Williams, Jr., of Chagrin Falls, were quietly united in marriage at the residence of Rev. George W. Hinkle yesterday afternoon. Mr. Varian was for several years connected with various Cleveland newspapers, and is now one of the staff of the Kansas City Evening Star. He has been spending a few days with his relatives and friends, and last evening departed with his bride for his new home in Missouri.—Cleveland Herald, 22 June, 1881.

Rev. ALEXANDER VARIAN established first the Lancasterian (graded schools on the English plan) system of education, superintended and taught at Lancaster and Philadelphia before he entered the ministry. He erected his first parish (All Souls) at Springfield, O., holding services first in an old blacksmith shop, which he had fitted up for the purpose. The Church thus established is now known as Christ Church. He afterward had charge of St. James Church, at Painesville, O., and was twice called to the pastorate of Christ Church, at Meadville, Pa. At one time he had a parish at Vincennes, Ind., and was the originator of the present Grace Church, at Cleveland, O. The services in this parish were first held in the old Court House, on the southwest corner of Monumental Park, and afterward in the lecture room of the Medical College, until the Church was erected.

Before entering the ministry he was Professor of Mathematics in Rev. Wm. Muhlenberg's Institute for Boys, at Flushing, N. Y., and among his pupils were: Bishop Bedell, of the diocese of Cleveland; Bishop Kerfoot, of the diocese of Pittsburgh; the late Bishop Odenheimer, of Pennsylvania; Rev. Mr. Van Bokkelen, of Buffalo, and the late Rev. J. Diller, of New York. At one time he had charge of a female seminary, at Nashville, Tenn. He educated his brother MILES and sister LAURA, and contributed liberally to the support of his aged parents and their family.

His was emphatically a busy life, and he had the reward of viewing the fruits of his labor before being called to a higher sphere.

THIRD GENERATION.

4. RICHARD VARIAN, b. at N. Y. City, 25 Dec., 1736, was a butcher by trade, and carried on the business for many years in the City of New York in the following localities: 19 Bowery Lane, 1791-7; 12 Bowery Lane, 1801-2; 12 Division, 1803-5; 12 Fisher (now _____), 1806-9; 12 Bayard, 1810; grocer, cor. Chapel and Thomas, 1811; 88 First, 1811-12; 10 Catherine Market, 1812-14 (res. Third, near Rivington, 1813; 88 Chrystie, 1817; 117 Forsyth, 1818); 10 Catherine Market, h. 147 Ludlow, 1819-22, where he died. He also was proprietor of the old "Bull's Head Tavern," from 1776 (on the 16th June, in which year he was listed as a "retailer of liquor" on Bowery Lane) until about 1802 or later. In 1803 he also had a stand at 53 Fly Market, where he is said to have been a butcher as early as 1770.

He, with his younger brothers MICHAEL and ISAAC, were active patriots in the Revolution (Bolton's Westchester, II. 127). RICHARD was commissary to the army encamped at Danbury, Conn., 1776, and was Superintendent of the Public Slaughter House under Nicholas Bayard, both before and after the war, but not during the struggle, as in his petition, dated April, 1784, for reinstatement to the latter position, he represents that "he was an exile at that time," and at the date of his petition "he has a family of sixteen." His exile, or a portion of it, was being engaged in the privateer service, but near the close of the war the vessel in which he was serving was, with a prize that they had captured, taken by a superior force, and the vessels and crew carried to Halifax, N. S., as prisoners, where he remained until the close of the war. When peace was proclaimed he returned to New York, and found the "Bull's Head Tavern" running in prosperous condition, under the management of his wife. In answer to his petition he was re-appointed as Superintendent of the Slaughter House.

"The Bull's Head Tavern" was situated on the Bowery, where the present Bowery Theatre now stands. The property then belonged to a wealthy gentleman, Henry Astor, residing in the vicinity. In 1826 a theatre was erected on the tavern site, and which was destroyed by fire, but the present appearance of the "Old Bowery" does not differ much from the original. The bond of marriage (N. Y. Marriage Licenses) between RICHARD VARIAN and Susannah Gardinear, of N. Y., his wife, bears date 27 June, 1761, and they were m. in the Old Dutch Church in N. Y. the day following. He died 20 Dec., 1822, of old age, aged 86, and his estate was administered by his friend John Bremner (clerk of Catherine Market 1816), letters being granted 2 April, 1823 (N. Y. Co. Records, Lib. 19, p. 142). His remains were interred in the cemetery of the Brick Presbyterian Church in N. Y.

His children were:

141. ISAAC (? R.), b. 14 Feb., 1763, bap. 13 Mar., 1763 (N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Record, V. 183).+

THIRD GENERATION.

5. MICHAEL VARIAN, butcher, b. N. Y. City, 9 Dec., 1738, and was in that vocation for many years at that place.

At the time of the Revolution (1775) he moved to Scarsdale, Westchester Co., N. Y., but returned at the close of the struggle, in which he took an active part on the patriot side.

In old directories of the City of New York he is found located at No. 6 Second St. (probably his residence), 1789-1816, and is also mentioned as a butcher, at 27 Division St., 1798, and as a grocer, at 25 Peck Slip, 1800.

The "Market Book" notes that he began business at the "Fly Market,"* and was the first butcher in "Catherine Market."

He resided at 74 Forsyth St., New York, from 1817 until his decease in 1825. He is said to have been familiar with the "Low Dutch" tongue, and to have been a large land-holder, owning property south of Canal St., and east of the Bowery, besides other realty in the lower part of the city. He married at the Old Dutch Church in N. Y., 27 Feb., 1772 (N. Y. Marriages, bond dated 25 Feb., 1772) Cornelia Horser, of N. Y. His will was proved (N. Y. Co. Records) 1826, and in it are mentioned issue that survived him as below:

180. JACOB HARSEN,† b. Jan., 1773, d. 16 April, 1849.+
181. JAMES, b. —, 1779, d. 21 July, 1826.+

---

* Located there 19 Aug., 1795, and occupied stand No. 53 in 1803.

† Probably named for Jacob Harsen, Esq., who was the Federalist Alderman for the Ninth Ward in N. Y., 1803-4.

FOURTH GENERATION.

180. JACOB HARSEN VARIAN, b. N. Y., Jan., 1773, may be identical with the person of same name who is mentioned in old directories of N. Y. as residing or doing business as butcher at 74 Bowery, 1796-7; 113 Bowery, 1798-1805; 24 Catherine Market and 95 First St., 1809-1815; Rivington St., 1817; Forsyth, near Rivington, 1817; 26 Catherine Market, h. 233 Forsyth, 1819-1821; h. 21 Eldridge St., 1823-1827 and 1836-46. He resided at 74 Forsyth St., 1848-9, and deceased of paralysis there, 16 April, 1849, aged 76 years and 3 months, and was bur. at St. Mark's Cemetery.

He m. Hester Murphy, and at the decease of his father received but a life interest in his estate, which was entailed to his (Jacob's) children and their heirs.

Such children would appear by said will to have been:

- 182. ELIZABETH, m. and had issue at date of will.
- 183. CHARLOTTE, m. ——— Webster and had dau. Mary.
- 184. CORNELIA.
- 185. ALLETTA, m. and had issue at date of will.
- 186. HESTER.
- 187. MARGARET.
- 188. ANN.
- 189. MICHAEL.
- 190. JAMES.
- 191. JACOB HARSEN, b. N. Y., 15 Sep., 1811, d. 4 Feb., 1855, at 19 Eldridge, N. Y., of nephritis, aged 43 years 5 months, bur. St. Mark's Cemetery. +
- 192. DEBORAH.
- 193. MARY, d. 74 Forsyth St., N. Y., 19 Dec., 1848, of phthisis, aged 32 years, 7 months, 6 days, and was bur. at St. Mark's Cemetery. Her will was proved 1849 (N. Y. Co. Records, Lib. 97, p. 100), and mentions "mother Hester," Mary Webster, dau. of Charlotte 183, and late sister—
- 194. LUCRETIA, and her sons Joseph, Samuel H. and Jacob H. Graham.

181. JAMES VARIAN, b. 1779, d. of liver complaint, at 19 Eldridge St., N. Y., 21 July, 1826, and was bur. in cemetery of Rutgers St. Presbyterian Church. He probably had no issue, or was not married, at the decease of his father, who, in his will, gives him but a life interest in his estate, which interest is entailed to his (MICHAEL 5) great grandson, James M. Cockroft, who is now (1881) a physician in New York.

The estate of JAMES VARIAN was administered by his brother JACOB H. VARIAN, letters being issued to him 28 Sep., 1826 (N. Y. Co. Records, Liber 22, p. 145).

FIFTH GENERATION.

191. JACOB HARSEN VARIAN,* b. N. Y., 15 Sept., 1811, d. at 19 Eldridge St., N. Y., 4 Feb., 1855, m. 22 Nov., 1841, Susan Angevine, dau. of JONATHAN 16 and Phœbe (Angevine) VARIAN. She b. 23 Sep., 1819, d. N. Y. City, 29 May, 1870. His (JACOB 191) will was proved 1855 (N. Y. Co. Records, Liber 112, p. 305).

Their issue was:

- 195. LAURA.
- 196. HENRIETTA.
- 197. MARY.
- 198. WILLIAM HENRY.

For details concerning this family see "SUSAN A. VARIAN," 24, page 26.

* Was a butcher at 2 Catherine Market, N. Y., 1847.

Descendants of Isaac Varian, Jr.

THIRD GENERATION.

6. ISAAC VARIAN, was the youngest son of ISAAC 1, and was b. in the City of New York, 8 Sep., 1740. He followed the profession of his father, and was a butcher in New York for a long period, residing and doing business at 176-180 Bowery, 1806-1818. His name frequently occurs in the old city records. In 1784 he, with his father, was a petitioner in favor of the establishment by Richard Deane of a public slaughter house on the North River. He was also one of the first butchers located in Catherine Market, being in business there in 1805. In connection with Gilbert Coutant he petitions, 20 July, 1790, for a proper place in the "Fly Market" for himself and "other farmers and gardeners" to transact their business. He was located as a butcher in "Fly Market" in 1803, occupying stand No. 29, and in 1795, in company with other butchers of said market, signed a certificate of the apprenticeship of Caleb Vandenburg.

He was quite prosperous in his calling and accumulated a handsome competence consisting of landed estate in both New York and Westchester Counties. The old "Varian House" and the farm on which it was situated was originally purchased by him, and for a long period existed as a prominent land-mark on Manhattan Island.

ISAAC VARIAN deceased of dropsy in the chest, 29 May, 1820, aged 79 years, 9 months and 21 days, on one of his estates in the County of Westchester, N. Y., and was interred in graveyard of Forsyth St. Methodist Church, N. Y. His estate was administered through the Surrogate's office at White Plains, letters issuing to his sons ISAAC and JACOB, and his son-in-law Gilbert Coutant, 8 June, 1820.

He was thrice married:

1. 3 Oct., 1765, Hannah (possibly dau. of Cornelius or Adam, the inn-keeper) Van Den Berg (N. Y. Marriages, p. 410; bond dated 2 Oct., 1765). She died 17 Dec., 1775.
2. 26 Feb., 1777, Alletta Harsen, who d. 30 July, 1801.
3. ——— 1803, Jane Betts.

199. ISAAC VARIAN, eldest son of ISAAC 6, was born in the City of New York, 13 Oct., 1767, and was bap. in the Presbyterian Church in that city, 15 Nov., 1767. He was a butcher, and was located at 176-180 Bowery, in the years 1806-1818; in Catherine Market, 1811-1813, residing at 125 Mott, near Grand St., and possibly is identical with the person of the same name residing on Spring St., near Mott, 1814; 83 Elizabeth, 1815; 42 Elizabeth, 1817. In 1793-6 he was foreman of Engine Co. 19, which "laid" in Hester St., near Bowery Lane. In 1820 the directory mentions him as a "gardener," near the "Arsenal" (? Varian farm), and in 1841 he was resident cor. Broadway and 27th St., in the "old Varian homestead," which he inherited from his father, and where he deceased of old age 1 July, 1842, and was buried in Marble Cemetery, N. Y. His will was proved 1842, and is of record in N. Y. Co. Records, Liber 85, p. 445. He m. 20 June, 1791, Tamar, dau. of ——— Leggett, b. West Farms, N. Y., 26 Mar., 1771, d. 26 Mar., 1840.

FIFTH GENERATION.

215. ISAAC L. VARIAN, son of ISAAC 199, was born on the "old homestead," in the City of New York, 25 June, 1793, and resided on a portion of the farm for many years. He never engaged in mercantile pursuits, being possessed of an ample competence. He was, however, actively interested in politics, being an "old school Democrat" and a member of the Tammany Society. He was chairman of the meeting held 29 October, 1835, on which evening the "Loco-foco" party was born. He held various offices of trust in the gift of the people: member of the State Assembly, 1831-4; alderman 12th ward, 1833-6; alderman 16th ward; president of the board, 1835-6; mayor of New York, 1839-40; State senator, 1842; school commissioner 16th ward, 1842-3. His portrait adorns the walls of the "Governor's Room" in the City Hall, New York, and no one can contemplate his picture without being impressed with his evident ability and sterling honesty and integrity.
 He removed to Peekskill, Westchester Co., N. Y., 1845, where he died 10 August, 1864, and his will was proved 12 Sep., 1864 (White Plains Records). He m. 25 June

HON. ISAAC L. VARIAN died at his residence, near Peekskill, N. Y., on Wednesday, August 10th, 1864, in the seventy-fifth year of his age.

Thus has passed away a life adorned with many virtues, and crowned with a Christian's Hope. His family have lost a devoted husband and kind father and the community an upright citizen, the poor a sympathizing friend, and the Church a liberal supporter and valued member.

He will be remembered by many as once prominent in public life, in the Legislature and as mayor of the City of New York, in which positions his incorruptible integrity, sound judgment and kind heart, won respect from all classes. But above these unsolicited honors of civil trust, he valued an humble place at the foot of the cross.

An immense concourse attended his funeral, attesting how great was the respect, how deep the sense of loss, felt at his departure.—Christian Intelligencer.

217. WILLIAM VARIAN, SON of ISAAC 199, was born at the "Varian House," in New York, 4 Sep., 1797, and was a gardener on the old farm, Bloomingdale Road, near 26th St., 1835; 6th Ave., near 27th St., 1839-1847. The house where he resided is still standing, and known as the "Knickerbocker Cottage." About the latter date he removed to Westchester, and resided upon a farm about one mile from the village, on the road to Fordham, until about the year 1860, when he sold the farm to the Roman Catholics, who erected thereon a "Protectory" for the reclamation of juveniles, and their education in industrial and religious matters. After the sale he removed, and deceased 3 Dec., 1863. His estate was administered 31 Dec., 1863 (White Plains, N. Y., Records), letters being issued to his widow and Albert Ward. He m. 23 Dec., 1819, Susan A., dau. of Isaac (b. 1767, d. 1832) and Sarah (Bennett) Cornell. She d. and her estate was administered 5 April, 1865 (White Plains, N. Y., Records).

RICHARD VARIAN inherited the "Varian homestead," and all of his children were born therein (except the youngest), and spent the earlier portion of their lives there. When the house was taken down in 1851 Richard had had built two houses on 26th St., into one of which his family removed. Richard was born, brought up and died on the old farm. The place is said to have been in the family previous to the "Revolution," at which time they abandoned it, and, upon the capture of Manhattan Island by the British, the family moved into Westchester County, within the American lines.

"VARIAN'S HOUSE."

The dwelling-house here represented was taken down some years since (1851) to make room for the splendid edifices which now beautify the portion of the city in which it was situated. It was the residence of Isaac Varian, and the birthplace of his children (among whom were ex-mayor Isaac L. Varian and the present alderman George W. Varian), and was occupied by him as his home at the time of his death, a few years since. The farm attached to the property contained about twenty-seven and a half acres, fronting originally on the Bloomingdale Road, and covering the blocks within the present limits of Broadway, 26th to 30th Streets, and extending nearly to the 7th Avenue. The northerly seventeen and a half acres were purchased by Mr. Varian of the executors of John De Witt, to whom the same was conveyed by Jacob Horn in 1751. The southerly ten acres were purchased from Adam Vandenburgh. The property is said to have been in the family about eighty years, and was cultivated as farming land. The old house is said to have shown evidences of having been in part constructed out of a ship's cabin, but whence this relic was derived we have no account. The building itself was a noticeable object in late years, when seen from the fashionable drive near which it was situated, partly owing to its humble appearance in the midst of a rapidly improving neighborhood, and partly from the pertinacity evinced by its wealthy occupant, who, although raised to very affluent circumstances by the rise in value of his land, yet clung to the humble homestead of his childhood, where his father had lived before him, until his grasp was released by death.—Valentine's Manual of the City of New York for 1856.

A view of the Varian building which was demolished in 1850-1 presents the most suggestive idea of the condition of Broadway in early times which can be produced.

It was situated south of a pleasant cross-road known as the "Abingdon Road," which connected Greenwich Village with the "Great Post Road," which branched off eastward from the present Broadway, near Madison Square. It was originally a swampy piece of land, containing about eleven acres, and belonged to the corporation of the city, and by them was presented to Sir Peter Warren in 1746 as a free gift. It was subsequently purchased by Henry Gage, who, after the Revolution (having returned to England) sold it to Isaac Varian for £600. Mr. Varian also owned a considerable tract, situated on the west side of Broadway, between 26th and 31st Streets, containing about fifteen acres, which he bought from the family of John De Witt in 1787, at the price of £1,280. The locality as it then existed may be seen by the map herewith. (Manual Common Council N. Y., 1865.)

221. GILBERT COUTANT VARIAN, b. on the "Varian estate," City of New York, 5 Feb., 1807, d. 6 Mar., 1846. He was a grocer at 426 Bowery, near Vauxhall Garden, 1833-5; cor. Broadway and 21st St., 1836-7; was mentioned in directory 1841 as a "carter," living at 6th Ave., cor. 26th St. He m. Jane Sneden, who survived him, and resided on 6th Ave., near 27th St., in 1848-9, about which time she moved to Plainfield, N. J., where she now (1881) resides.

222. GEORGE WASHINGTON VARIAN was born 3 April, 1809, in the "old homestead," lived and died on the land formerly occupied by the old farm. He was never engaged in any business except caring for the property which he inherited from his father's estate. He was universally respected, and held several offices by will of popular suffrage, was justly esteemed for his many virtues, and was a veritable type of the New York gentleman. He was councilman 56th district 1854, alderman 21st ward 1855-6, member of State Assembly 1860. He resided on W. 26th St., between Bloomingdale Road and 6th Ave., 1847-8, and at 30 W. 29th St., 1851, until his decease 8 Feb., 1879. He died of pneumonia, and was bur. in Marble Cemetery, N. Y. #### A SCRAP OF HISTORY.

The Old Varian Tree on Broadway.—A Father in Manhattan Recounts its History.

Gradually the old land-marks of the city, around which the memories of our fathers clustered, have succumbed to the necessities of this fast age of improvement in steam, electricity, mechanics, etc. The last that has fallen before the axe of the destroyer is the Varian tree on Broadway, that was hewn down last fall, and cut up into butcher's blocks. One of the fathers of the present generation the writer saw standing by, as limb after limb of the veteran tree was lowered to mother earth, and tears unbidden coursed down his aged cheeks, as he witnessed the destruction of a forest king, planted and nursed by his distinguished progenitors. While the work was progressing the writer and Mr. Varian stood by and watched the movements of the sacrilegious hands of the destroyer, and saw the last branch stripped from the parent stem. Mr. Varian at that time expressed his intention to send a part of the tree to the Police Department for preservation.

He has done so. Yesterday at the session of the Board of Police Commissioners the following letter was handed in by Superintendent Kennedy, in whose custody the relic is placed. The board accepted it with thanks, and will likely place it beside the branch of the Stuyvesant tree that adorns the room of Commissioner Brennan. The following is Mr. Varian's letter on the subject. It will be seen from it that the tree is fully 240 years old—probably the oldest tree on Manhattan Island:

NEW YORK, January 24, 1870.

JOHN A. KENNEDY, Superintendent, etc., etc.

Dear Sir: Through you to the department I send a piece of the old buttonwood, or sycamore, tree (commonly known as the old Varian tree) that stood on the sidewalk, west side, between 26th and 27th Streets, Broadway, formerly the old Albany post road. The history of this tree, with three others that stood in front of the old house in which I was born, as near as I can ascertain, was planted by some of the Dutch settlers on this island between the years 1625 and 1630, making it 240 years old at least. The house was built partially from some old Dutch galiot that was drawn up Stuyvesant Creek, and ran across where 22d St. and the 3d Ave. now is, thence northward to about the northeast corner of the present Madison Square, formerly the site of the old State arsenal and Potter's Field; thence north side of arsenal and Potter's Field to and across the old Albany post road, now Broadway, where was about the headwaters that followed into Stuyvesant Creek.

As a relic of the pioneers of the Western Continent of America I send a small piece of the old tree, to be placed in your headquarters, that future generations may contemplate the rapid growth of our city.

Very respectfully,

GEO. W. VARIAN.

The portion of the tree presented with the letter is mounted on a bracket, nicely oiled and varnished, and is in a good state of preservation. Travelers on Broadway can see the remains of the trunk protruding through the sidewalk, on the west side, between 26th and 27th Streets.—From the N. Y. Herald of January 29th, 1870.

Here is an old school Democrat, and one of the genuine Knickerbockers. He has a stout form, bushy gray hair and whiskers, is about 58 years of age, and exceedingly vigorous. He dresses in black, wears a large brimmed felt hat, and carries a good trusty stick as his companion. He was formerly alderman of the 21st ward, and in 1861 was a member of the Legislature, and made some sound speeches on the war question. He is known as Ald. George W. Varian, and is a brother of the late ex-Mayor Varian. He has retired from the active pursuits of life, having a fine income, and, being a staunch State's Rights Democrat, is the president of the Thomas Jefferson Association of New York; and when on this theme few men can debate with him, for he bears them down with a torrent of Democratic logic and tradition, that overwhelms and covers them with defeat and confusion. He is like a noble old Roman, for he will endure no striplings in political antagonism—he brushes them away like cobwebs, and seeks to grapple with sterner stuff, foemen worthy of his steel. If we had more men of his metal in the Democratic party there would be no fear for the Republic.—New York Newspaper.

O B I T U A R Y .

GEORGE W. VARIAN.

This gentleman died yesterday (8 Feb., 1879) at his residence in 29th Street, adjoining the Fifth Avenue Theatre, after a few days' illness, from pneumonia. He served the city as one of its councilmen in 1854, as one of its aldermen in 1855 and 1856, and as one of its assemblymen in 1860. He once refused the use of his name in connection with a Democratic nomination for mayor when his election would have been assured, but having seen the annoyances to which his brother, the late Isaac L. Varian, while mayor in 1839, was subjected, he shrunk from the responsibility. He never had a real taste for politics, but his proverbial integrity, coupled with his frank, hearty bearing, made him not only a popular gentleman, but an extremely available candidate. He was born seventy years ago on the well known old Varian farm, that was bounded by the Bloomingdale Road—now upper Broadway—and the present 7th Avenue, and at the points where the streets between 26th and 30th were cut through, and he lived and died within the area of the original farm land. He was born to an ample competence, and never had other occupation than aiding in the care of the family real estate, that rapidly developed in value as the city became extended. Some of the ancient estate yet remains to duly pass into the possession of his widow and his daughter, who is the wife of Mr. Henry Gilsey, one of the owners of the great Gilsey property.

It was natural that Mr. Varian should be fond of New York City and of its well being, and in or out of office he intelligently and zealously supported every measure that could promote its prosperity, if that measure was coupled with honor and divested of extravagance. Hence his name and influence during the past quarter century were often found actively on the side of municipal reform. In private life he was just, courteous, full of good humor and greatly attached to home, family and friends.

Obituary Notice of the Death of Mrs. Emeline C. Jordan, written to the "Christian Intelligencer," by the Rev. Abr. R. Van Nest (at that time in Italy).

Your journals have lately reported the death of another estimable lady, Mrs. E. C. Jordan, and you will permit one who has enjoyed her frequent hospitality to present this grateful tribute to her memory. She belonged to one of our old Dutch families, was the sister of our former mayor, Isaac L. Varian, and the widow of Alderman Jordan. Her residence was in Broadway, by the big button-ball tree, above 26th Street, on the very site of her father's

Alfred Varian

247. ALFRED VARIAN was born near William's Bridge, N. Y. (now a part of the City of New York, but then quite a farming district), 2 Aug., 1814. In boyhood he worked on the farm of his uncle, MICHAEL VARIAN. At about the age of nineteen years he came to the City of New York, and was apprenticed to a butcher in Catharine Market. He afterward established himself in the same trade at the same place (3, 4 and 5 Catharine Market), where he continued thirty years. In 1871 he removed to Mott Haven, and from thence to Oyster Bay, L. I., where he began farming on a small scale. Some years before he left Catharine Market he was requested by "a friend" to accommodate him with an "endorsement," which he did, and, as is too often the case, Mr. Varian was left to "settle the bill," occasioning him a great loss, from which he never recovered.

Mr. Varian resided in New York, on 7th Ave, 1842; 7 Ave. A, 1844-5; 295 Bowery, 1846-7; 53 5th, 1848-50; 13 Ave. A, 1851-2; 63 5th, 1853-65; 77 E. 15th, 1866; 204 2d Ave., 1867; 232 E. 13th, 1868; 1056 2d Ave., 1869-70; 1st Ave., cor. 86th, 1872-3.

From Oyster Bay he removed to Syosset, L. I. His health began to fail about the year 1876-7, and while on a visit at Mott Haven, N. Y., he was taken ill, died 5 May, 1877, and was buried at Woodlawn Cemetery.

He was identified with the State militia of N. Y., being lieutenant in the troop attached to the Seventh Regiment. He was also a member of the Kosciusko Boat Club, and one of the organizers of the Manhattan Yacht Club of New York.

He m. 10 April, 1843, Eliza L., dau. of Charles Ridabock, who was for many years proprietor of the Tontine Restaurant in Wall Street. She is living (1881).

Their children were:

ALFRED VARIAN (356), whose portrait is on opposite page, was educated in the Common Schools of New York, graduating from Grammar School No. 35, and being admitted to the Free Academy, now dignified by the title of "The College of the City of New York." In 1870 he was employed in the clothing house of Joshua M. Varian & Son, at 70-72 Bowery, remaining three years; thence he went into the jewelry establishment of B. W. Ellison, at 181 Broadway, for two years. Then he tried a year at farming with his father on Long Island, and afterward (1876) took charge of a number of yachts at New York. From this period he became connected with several mercantile houses at different times, and for the past four years has been in the employ of Ira Perego's Sons, at 85 Nassau St. Mr. Varian is quite well known in New York as an amateur athlete and yachtsman, being connected with several respectable organizations—Excelsior Social, Charter Oak, Knickerbocker Gun Club and Knickerbocker Yacht Club, of the latter the secretary, and captain and owner of the yacht "Quits."

A prominent New York journal, speaking of Mr. Varian in connection with a number of pedestrian contests, says: "He has been in a great many races not mentioned in this sketch. Such success as he has achieved has been hard earned. He never trained for a race, his business confining him to work, so that he has never been able to spare any time for preparation. Last season he was not seen on the track, but he may be heard from again this (1881) year.

In 1873 at Rockaway, L. I., he and a companion were instrumental in saving the life of Captain Bowen, of Mott Haven, who had ventured in the surf beyond the "life line," and was seized with cramps.

A "VAIRIN" FAMILY.

From Mr. A. L. P. VAIRIN of Owensboro, Ky., the following information is received.

"Owing to the many changes and removals of our family no records or papers have been preserved. Tradition says that our family came originally from the neighborhood of Chalons, France. Being Huguenots, at the revocation of the Edict of Nantes (1685,) a portion emigrated to Germany, and settled at or near Hamburg.

"The first name which I recollect is CHARLES VAIRIN who had three sons, NICHOLAS, CHARLES and JOHN P. They settled early in life at St. Petersburg, Russia, where, owing to political troubles, they separated, the first two remaining in Russia, while the latter went to France where, for many years, he was in government employ. In 1815 he emigrated to the United States, where he deceased in 1817, leaving three sons from whom the Vairins in New Orleans (JULIUS) are the descendants.

“In several French records, are found many persons of the name, but no traceable relationship. Forty years since I knew a family of the same name at Dayton O. of Irish descent. There is also one at Orangeburg Ky.

“The difference in the spelling of the name may be accounted for by time and nationality. During the reign of Louis XIV. we find the name of a noted engraver written OVARIN, WARIN, VARIN, etc.”

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID DEVOIR VARIAN. (11, p. 24.)

The following family record is based upon the record contained in the bible (printed at Edinburgh by Alexander Kincaid, his Majesty's Printer MDCCLXIX) of JOSEPH VARIAN, (2 p. 21) which at his decease descended to DAVID DEVORE VARIAN, (11, p. 24), whose wife left it to LEMUEL VARIAN. At the decease of the later it passed into the possession of LAURA ANN VARIAN, and is now in the custody of Madelaine A. Saunders her daughter by whom this abstract was furnished. ## FOURTH GENERATION.

c.—ELIZABETH, b. near N. Y., 17 Dec., 1791. d. at Leavenworth, Kan. aged 75.

d.—ISRAEL, b. near N. Y., 8 July, 1793, d. single 8 Dec., 1818.

In the year 1794 he (DAVID) moved to Troy, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., where were born:

e.—LEMUEL WOLCY, b. 9 Sep., 1795, d. 1877, aged 83.

f.—LAURA ANN, b. 16 June, 1798, d. 22 May, 1878.

In 1800, DAVID with his family emigrated from Troy N. Y., to Montreal, Canada, where he settled on a farm about two miles from the city. Here the following children were born:

g.—MATILDA, b. 28 Aug., 1800, d. 2 June, 1828.

h.—ABIGAIL, b. 4 Aug., 1802, d. 4 Mar., 1865.

i.—SARAH L., b. 9 July, 1804.

DAVID, the father, being too much of a Republican to live under monarchical government, and the "War of 1812" being about to assume a dark and serious character, his situation in Canada began to be unpleasant because of his out spoken sentiments. Consequently under the advice of friends he was influenced to emigrate to Ohio in company with his brother TIMOTHY* (13 p. 24.) who had married and was also dwelling near Montreal, and with a neighbor named Holt they built a boat and on the first day of May 1807, they sailed up the St. Lawrence river, coasted along the shore of Lake Ontario, and after many trials they reached a point where they could, by having their boat hauled nine miles across the country, re-embark on the head waters of the Allegheny river. They floated down this river to the Ohio, and thence to what is now known as Meigs Co., in Ohio where TIMOTHY VARIAN and Mr. Holt settled, while DAVID established himself at Gallipolis in Gallia Co., O., where he purchased a farm and resided until decease, 4 Feb., 1826.

In the "War of 1812" DAVID volunteered the services of himself and team, endured all the hardships of the service, lost his team, and was obliged to return on foot from Fort Wayne to Gallipolis where he arrived weary and foot-sore, but with a cheerful disposition which was ever a marked characteristic of his life. He was small in stature, very fair complexion, large blue eyes, and light hair.

During the "fever scourge" at Gallipolis, in 1824, he was one of the five who were not stricken with the fever, and his name is not forgotten by the early settlers who remember gratefully his efforts to succor the helpless women and children during this period of their severe trial. Both DAVID and his wife were buried in the old cemetery at Gallipolis, the land for which purpose he set off from his farm. The road on which it was located is now one of the principal streets, and passers by may note his tombstone, inscribed,

*David DeVore Varian,
born in the city of New York;
July 21st, 1767,
died Feb. the 4th, 1826,
in the town of Gallipolis.*

The farm is now the most prosperous part of Gallipolis; the rail road depot being exactly opposite the former location of his house. The family which he left are now scattered over the United States.

z. 1.—Anson, b. 1824, d. Apl., 1865,

z. 2.—Harriet Amelia, b. 1829, d. — 1867.

This family was intimate with their VARIAN relatives of New York City, and frequent visits were interchanged; particularly with the descendants of RICHARD 4.

NOTE.—There is a tradition among the descendants of DAVID DEVORE VARIAN that ISAAC 1. had a brother MICHAEL who settled on the New Jersey shore of New York bay on Hudson River, and that this MICHAEL had a son JOSEPH who occupied the estate as late as 1824—1829, and where ABIGAIL (h) visited them. It is said that the house, when the tide was high stood upon an island, and that the same old high-roofed house that the MICHAEL alluded to, built before the Revolution, is still in existence.

Abigail (Varian) Sabine (h) was the “first white woman” at Hot Springs, Arkansas, to which place she and her husband emigrated from Albany, N. Y., 1 Oct., 1833, arriving there 13 Mar., 1834, having spent the winter at Gallipolis, O.

At the breaking out of the Rebellion, this family having been long resident in Arkansas espoused the cause of the South. Anson (*z*1) being a lieutenant in the Army of the Confederacy. When the Union troops captured Hot Springs he was wounded, and fell in the door yard in front of his mother’s house, and lived but a few moments, dying in April, 1865.

His sister Harriet Amelia survived him but two years.

i.—SARAH L. VARIAN, m. 8 Nov., 1824, Absalom Ulin of Greenup Co., Ky., and settled at Pendleton, Madison Co., Ky., where they and their descendants now reside.

It is to be regretted that the foregoing contribution could not have been placed under the proper—head in this book, but the lateness of its reception precluded this.

It will however, prove of interest not only to the immediate descendants of JOSEPH VARIAN 2, but will also be attractive to those who are descended from the brothers of JOSEPH and who “never knew of a VARIAN who moved out of sight of the smoke of the chimneys on Manhattan Island.”

In conclusion, and in regard to the repute of this family I may quote that “none of the descendants ever used intoxicating liquor, none were ever arrested for a crime, and none but what bore a respectable character.” Truly they may be proud of the standing of their family.

IN CONCLUSION

I have finished this work and with the material at my command have endeavored to compile as lucid and interesting a volume, as possible. I may have failed, but I certainly have struggled. Other abler hands than mine might have attained better results, and I am willing to concede this. Errors are certain to be found, but I hope that the discoverers may prove charitable. “To err is human etc., etc.” But types may have become misplaced, and thereby wrung the temper of the sensitive,—but types have always been addicted to gymnastics since, Faust, Guttenberg & Co., first opened an office.

This brochure cannot be expected to please all, but one certainly will be gratified—“mine enemy,” for “I have written a book.”
